Valentine's Day - Why Do We Celebrate

Did you know that there was a Saint Valentine of Rome? According to legend, he was a priest who defied the roman emperor's ban on marriage for young soldiers and secretly performed weddings for them. He was arrested and imprisoned. While imprisoned he healed the blind daughter of his jailer and fell in love with her. Before his execution, he wrote her a letter signed "from your Valentine".

It wasn't until many years later that Pope Gelasius I started the Feast of Saint Valentine in 496 AD, and the 14th of February was chosen as the day of the feast. The original idea was to feast and honor Saint Valentine's resilience and determination to spread the Gospel of Christ.

The first people to connect love and chocolate were the Mayans. They started brewing drinks made from cocoa beans around 500 BCE - centuries before the first Feast of Saint Valentine. By the 1840's Valentine's Day had become a day to celebrate love. Cadbury debuted the first heart-shaped box of chocolates in 1861, and it was an instant success. They did not patent the box design, so everyone else jumped on board.

Americans exchanged hand written notes and love letters for many years until the 1700's when ready-made Valentine's Day cards became available. After receiving an English Valentine's Day card, Esther Howland of Worcester began mass-producing her cards in the 1840s. She was hoping for an order for $200 but received an order for $5,000. She recruited her friends to help her make the cards and started her own business. She was the Martha Stewart of the 18th century. They were made with paper, lace, flowers and some had hidden windows and envelopes.

In our modern era, the Greeting Card Association calculates that about 145 million Valentine's Day cards are exchanged every year. The traditional handwritten notes and cards are no longer a fad these days. They have given way to mass-produced cards and e-Valentine cards.

It is estimated that Americans spend in excess of $10 billion dollars on Valentines Day. This Valentine's Day, as you are out buying flowers, chocolates and cards, take a moment and remember Saint Valentine who was executed for going against the Roman Empire. After all, this is really a day to honor him.
